PERSONAL.

Prince Hans of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg, a brother of the late King Christian of Denmark and generally known as the "uncle of Europe," is critically ill.

Frederic Remington, the artist, died at his home in Ridgefield, Conn., following an attack of appendicitis complicated with septic peritonitis.

Samuel W. Williams, candidate for vice-president on the Populist ticket in 1908, was stricken with heart failure at his home in Vincennes, Ind. His condition is serious.

Mark Twain's invalid daughter, Jean Clemens, died from an attack of epilepsy while taking a bath at her father's home in Stormfield, Mass. She was about thirty years old and was a close companion to her father.

Threatened with pneumonia and in a weakened condition, William J. Bryant was forced to cancel his lecture at Jacksonville, Fla. He is under the care of physicians at the residence of his cousin, William S. Jennings, Florida member of the Democratic national committee.

Another young monarch was added to the reigning sovereigns of Europe when Albert I. ascended the throne of Belgium at Brussels. The official ceremony was brilliant and the popular acclamations genuine.

Commander Peary very strongly intimated, in a speech at the banquet of the New England society at New York that the expedition which he led successfully to the north pole might also try for the south pole.

United States Senator A. J. McLaughlin expired suddenly from an attack of heart trouble at his home in Brandon, Miss., at the age of 61 years. Death came without the slightest warning.

Percy E. Rockefeller, son of William Rockefeller, is convalescing at Greenwich, Conn., after an operation for appendicitis performed a fortnight ago.

Spencer F. Eddy, who landed at New York and is on his way west, says he resigned as minister to the Balkan states because he has become tired of living abroad.

GENERAL NEWS.

Thomas Botham, a retired farmer, 72 years old, killed himself after a fruitless attempt to slay his wife at St. Joseph, Mich. Botham's little granddaughter was hurt slightly in jumping from a second-story window in escaping from her crazed grandfather. Policeman Delvin Fisher was knocked down by a bullet which grazed his temple.

Knocked down by a right-hand blow to the jaw, Bob Fitzsimmons, one time champion of the heavyweights, lost his fight to Bill Lang, champion of Australia, at Sydney, N. S. W.

Michael Malone, Michael McGraw and Fred Malone, miners, were burned to death near Harrison, Mineral county, Virginia. Patrick Malone and Frederick Dugan, who boarded at the same house, are missing. Officers are working on a clue indicating that the fire was started after the celebration by a man who had been ejected.

While firemen fought a stubborn blaze in the basement of the People's Methodist church in Kansas City, Kan., 50 children, ignorant of the fact that the building was on fire beneath them, sang Christmas hymns and took part in a special holiday service.

Five hundred delegates, representing the various business colleges and commercial departments of collegiate institutions of the United States, assembled in Louisville for a three-days' session.

Thirty of the largest wholesale diamond firms in New York have formed an association which purports to help stop the smuggling of gems, especially diamonds and pearls. The dealers will co-operate with the federal authorities.

Five million dollars is the estimate made of the havoc wrought in and around Boston by the blizzard which swept New England and drove a record tide over the coast.

Six members of anarchistic groups have been arrested at Moscow, in connection with a plot against the czar and carina of Russia.

Five hundred persons are believed to have perished in the storm that has swept Portugal in the last few days. The loss is fully $20,000,000.

William Murray, a miner 35 years old, shot and killed Elbert Cole, Mrs. Murray and the latter's mother, at Pittsburg, Ky., a mining village, and then turning the weapon upon himself, blew his brains out. Family estrangements was the cause for the crime.

Monsi Falconio, papal delegate to the United States, is annoyed over discussion of "the probable establishment of an embassy of the United States to the Vatican." The story, said the papal delegate, is a pure invention never even thought of in official circles.

An exposition will be held in New Orleans to celebrate the opening of the Panama canal and incidentally the two hundredth anniversary of the founding of the city.

A $50,000 monument to Breckenridge of New York city who died at his post of duty will be built in Union square next year.

Declared to have no equal as a first-class fighting machine, the battleship Utah, the greatest warship ever built in the United States, was launched from the yard of the New York Shipbuilding Company at Camden, N. J.

D. Masson and E. Renon, French airplane experts, are in New York en route to Los Angeles to participate in the January aviation contests. Renon will be Paulhan's chief assistant. Masson will attempt flights in a monoplane of his own invention.

Nearly the entire detective force of Pittsburgh is seeking a solution of the death of James Lawrence Friel, a 14-year-old boy, whose body was found in an abandoned house on the North side frozen and with the throat lacerated with a knife.

William E. Ritter and wife, aged 70, were found dead in their farm house near Washington, Ind. The furniture was disarranged and evidence points to foul play. The Ritters are known to have kept large sums of money at their home.

Angelina Schiavone, 17-year-old crippled daughter of Pasquale Schiavone, an Italian banker of Chicago, declared in her testimony as a witness for the state in her father's prosecution of her uncle and relatives, who are on trial charged with inducing her to steal money, that she had taken nearly $100,000 from her father's bank to pay to the defendants on their promise that her cousin, Michael, also a cripple, would marry her.

The breach between the striking switchmen and the railroads of the northwest was widened instead of a settlement of the strike being effected as a result of the conference between representatives of the union and the roads. Although the men seem to have the worst of the clash so far, and 1,000 of the 2,500 who quit work have resumed their posts, President Hawley and other union leaders are talking about a general strike by all of the allied orders belonging to the railway branch of the American Federation of Labor.

The Mexican gunboat Gen. Guerrero, having on board ex-President Zelaya of Nicaragua, who fled from Managua by way of Corinto on Christmas eve, has arrived at Salina Cruz, Mexico. Zelaya left for Mexico City to see President Diaz.

A startling market movement on the New York stock exchange that had all the earmarks of "corner" came when the common stock of the Rock Island company, in five minutes from the opening rose from 50 1/2 to 51. Then it settled to 50 after heavy trading. The governing board appointed a committee to inquire into the alleged "corner."

That the people of the United States have been the complacent victims of a system of plunder of the public forests—crimes often perpetrated by men of high station in commercial and social life—was the open declaration of Chief United States Forester Gifford Pinchot in an address before a number of prominent publishers at the University club in New York.

By the terms of a $70,000,000 traction deal all the surface traction lines in Chicago south of Madison street and a line extending beyond the city and state to Whiting, Ind., were merged into one ownership, that of a syndicate of local magnates and J. Pierpont Morgan was eliminated as a factor in Chicago transportation lines.

That Dr. Frederick A. Cook, arctic explorer, regarding whose strange disappearance there has been such mystery, fearing a plot to take his life, shaved his mustache and in disguise left for Europe under the assumed name of Frederick Hunter, was the gist of a statement issued by Charles Wake of New York, one of Cook's most intimate friends.

The new president of Nicaragua, Jose Madriz, is taking hold of affairs with a strong hand. Zelaya left him the legacy of an empty treasury, and soon after President Madriz had publicly announced, in effect, that the country was practically on the verge of bankruptcy, Joaquin Passes, Zelaya's son-in-law, and Ernesto Martinez, Zelaya's last finance minister, were arrested and charged with misappropriating public funds.

After drinking a pint of pure alcohol in an attempt to commit suicide, Joseph Bowden, a wealthy merchant of Salmon, Ind., succeeded in dying by stabbing himself in the neck with a pair of scissors at Hot Springs, Ark. He was despondent over ill health.

The definition of the word "whisky" by the highest legal authority was given when President Taft rendered the final decision on the subject in connection with the construction of the pure food law with reference to labeling. The president held that whisky made of neutral spirits is whisky when reduced to potable strength.

Entering the chapel of St. Joseph's church, Lexington, Ky., where he was to officiate at early mass, Rev. Father Edward Wiesner, rector of the church, was attacked by a drunken negro, with whom he was compelled to fight in defense of his life. The priest was painfully wounded. The negro escaped.

Musicians from all over the country gathered at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., for the meeting of the Music Teachers' National association. The Kansas State Music Teachers' association also met in Wichita.

CONFESSES SLAYING FRIEND

Italian Says He Was Promised $400
By Man Who Wanted to Wed
Wife of Murdered One.

Sandusky, O.—After he had been "excited" for nearly six hours by Chief of Police Weinberger, Prosecuting Attorney Stephens and others, Frank Benah, 49, an Italian fisherman, confessed, the police say, that it was he who shot and killed his friend, Agostino Dema, a week ago.

Benah said in the alleged confession that he had been promised $400 by Jim Primer, another Italian, who long had loved Mrs. Dema and who followed her to this country and to Sandusky just to be near her. Primer, it is alleged, often said that Dema stood in the way of his happiness, that he was dead. Primer would soon win Mrs. Dema.

Asked why he, always respected in the local Italian colony, had stooped to murder Benah, the police say, told that he has a wife and seven children in Italy, that he has been out of work since last August, and that he needed money.

COST OF RUNNING CITIES

CENSUS BUREAU MAKES ELABORATE INVESTIGATION.

If 158 Large Municipalities of America Were to Merge a Large Working Capital Would be Needed.

Washington, Dec. 29.—If the 158 largest cities of the United States were to merge themselves into one great corporation they would need a working capital of $1,250,000,000 or about the equivalent of the capital stock of the United States Steel Corporation turned into hard cash. The census bureau has made a very elaborate investigation on what it costs to run our municipalities, how the money is spent, and who gets it.

The net amounts spent on public works and departments or collected from taxes, or other sources of revenue composed about 58 per cent of the total transactions of 1907. The remaining 42 per cent was spent incidentally to the conduct of the city's business, or in transactions where the city acted merely as a fiscal agent as in the collection of revenue for the state or county.

During 1907, after paying all maintenance and operation and interest upon debt, the cities of the United States had among them $122,000,000 to push new work.

It cost more than $50,000,000 a year to protect life and property; it cost more than $37,000,000 for sanitation and the preservation of health; the leading item of $109,000,000 is for education, and for recreation we spend less of all, a little more than $12,000,000. It costs $2.37 per capita in New York to maintain the police force, and it costs only 49 cents in Oshkosh. It costs $2.42 in Washington and only 44 cents in Lincoln, Neb. The tendency of municipal ownership shows itself in some directions. Of these 158 cities 116 own and operate their own water plants. Only 76 of them own their own market places.

SALARY IS RAISED; WILL SUE

Elyria City Solicitor to Test Validity of Act Which Adds $300 to His Yearly Pay.

Elyria, O., Dec. 29.—Although granted a $300 increase in salary by the ordinance recently passed, Solicitor H. A. Pounds says that he will bring suit to test the validity of the act. His determination followed a request preferred upon him by Tom C. Johnson, son of Attorney E. G. Johnson, as a taxpayer.

Peculiar circumstances surrounded the passage of the salary ordinance. Higher salaries were first favored and then opposed by the retiring mayor, D. S. Troxel. He announced that he would take ten days to sign the ordinance, thus making his signature too late to secure effective publication in 1909. While the mayor was attending a dinner celebration in Cleveland, Vice Mayor F. N. Smith signed the ordinance on the last day that would permit of its publication. Troxel returned and sent a veto message to the council. The validity of the vice mayor's signature, in the mayor's absence, is called into question.

WAVES WRECK MANY HOUSES

Cottages Carried Away and Occupants Rescued in Boats When Storm Hits Coast.

New York, Dec. 29.—When communication, interrupted by the Christmas storm, was reopened with the eastern end of Long Island, it developed that the storm damage there was serious. The sweep of water from the sea in the highest tide on record assumed almost the proportions of a tidal wave.

Greenport, Riverhead and other towns suffered heavily. Families living on the water front had to take refuge in the second stories of their dwellings, and were rescued in row boats. At South Beach, near Riverhead, cottages were wrecked by the waves and some of them were washed away. At Greenport, docks were carried away and thousands of dollars damage done to shipping, oystering and allied industries.

ZELAYA IS STILL PRESIDENT

Former Dictator Declares Madriz Is Only Provisional Executive of Nicaragua.

Cordoba, Mex., Dec. 29.—Jose Santos Zelaya declared last night that he is still president of Nicaragua, although he may never go back to that country to enjoy the privileges of the office. Madriz, he asserted, is only a provisional president and that he (Zelaya) has not relinquished the executive office.

Asked about the conditions imposed by the British government in reply to his request for an asylum aboard the British cruiser Shearwater, Zelaya admitted that he was told he could board her only with the understanding that he was to agree to leave Nicaragua forever. These conditions, he said, he declined to accept. Mexico, on the other hand, he declared, made no reservations in granting him permission to board the Guerrero.

Loses Legs, but Keeps His Word.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—The amputation of both legs is the price paid by Rev. W. E. Bostick, Yorkville, Ill., for his religious zeal. Both feet were frozen in a 12-mile tramp through a blizzard on a recent Sunday night to fulfill a promise to hold services in a Yorkville Baptist church.

A Policeman's Testimony.

J. N. Patterson, night policeman of Neshub, Iowa, writes: "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at least half a dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two-thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world." F. A. Morris, Canfield.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Colic and Whooping Cough Syrup. It soothes the pain and breaks the bursts.

New Year and St. Nicholas

Legends of the good St. Nicholas, the patron saint of children, are popular in many places at the time of the New Year festival.

Away back in the fourth century, it is told, a child, who was afterwards christened Nicholas, was born to a wealthy couple, who had long desired an heir in vain.

The child came in answer to many prayers and as a reward for much almsgiving. It is said that on the day of his birth he was in his bath and raised his clasped hands in grateful adoration to God who had suffered him to be born. The story goes that he refused to take food more than once on Wednesdays and Fridays, and that as soon as he was able to speak he uttered words of wisdom.

It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that he was early dedicated to the priesthood. His parents dying of the plague soon after his consecration, the young priest fell heir to his father's vast possessions, which he resolved to employ for the service of the church and for charity.

The story is told of his issuing forth from his monastery under cover of night to render aid unseen to those in distress. Among those who benefited by his charity were the down-trodden daughters of a poor farmer. These daughters were very unhappy because, owing to their lack of money, they were unable to wed the lovers of their choice. St. Nicholas came by night to the window of their chamber and dropped a bag of gold at the feet of the oldest daughter. He escaped undiscovered and returned the next night with another bag of gold for the second daughter. On the third night, as he was attempting to get away after leaving a bag of gold for the third, he was discovered by the grateful father, and was forced to listen to his outpouring of thanks.

St. Nicholas, it is said, had the power to still the waves. On his way to the Holy Land a terrific storm arose, and the sailors entreated him to intercede in their behalf. At a word from the holy man, the storm subsided, and calm once more reigned upon the waters.

After the return of St. Nicholas to his native land, the bishop of Myra suddenly died, and the elders, meeting to appoint a successor, were sorely perplexed as to whom they should choose. It was miraculously revealed to them that the first man to enter the church the next morning would be the one chosen, so they all repaired to the church long before the sun was up. St. Nicholas, returning from his charitable labors of the night, entered the church to pray, as he thought, alone, and was at once hailed as bishop.

Shortly after this, a heavy famine fell upon the land, and in order to prevent the people from starving to death, St. Nicholas, unknown to anybody, performed a miracle upon a ship which lay in the harbor, where by he caused the cargo to remain undiminished notwithstanding that 100 horseheads of wheat were taken from it.

The famine nevertheless grew worse and worse, until it was reported that some people were so wicked as to eat little children. St. Nicholas went to visit one of the men who were so accused in order to find out if this thing were really true. When dinner was served, the main dish was the meat of a child. St. Nicholas at once arose from the table, demanding of his host how he dared do such a thing. Going down cellar he found the bodies of many little children which had been preserved in salt, and taking pity upon them, St. Nicholas restored them to life and to their sorrowing parents.

A NEW YEAR'S RONDEAU.

(Exodus xv. 27)

Palm-trees and wells they found of yore,
Who, that Egyptian bondage o'er,
Got sight betimes of feathering green,
Of lengthened shadows, and between,
The deep, long-garnered water-store.Dear,—dear is Rest by sea and shore;
But dearest to the travel-sore,
Whose camping-place not yet has been
Palm-trees and wells.For such we plead. Shall we ignore
The long procession of the Poor,
Still faring through the night wind keen,
With faltering steps, to the Unseen?
Nay; let us seek for these once more
Palm-trees and wells!

Work.

Across the roofs, the drifting smoke
Athwart the sky,
Huge forms of blackened chimneys,
shafts
Like phantoms lie.But slowly, slowly in the dark
The smoke rolls on,
Inexorable as the bells
That speak the morn.

—Susan Sharp Adams in Boston Transcript.

Making Himself Heard.

Samuel Rogers, the poet, is no doubt a great wit, but he has a turn for malice and even brutality. Some one once asked him why he never opened his mouth except to speak evil of his neighbors. He replied: "I have a very weak voice, and if I did not say malicious things I should never be heard."—Memoirs of the Duchess of Dino.

HAND-MADE HATS AND FLOWERS

A new and a very useful kind of fancy work is found by the resourceful woman in the covered hat. We have covered the stiff buckram frame with chints, cretonnes and gingham, but the latest models, showing the experience gained by milliners in their earlier efforts, are exquisite bits of French skill and beautiful harmonies in color. They are not impossible to copy if the dainty worker be willing to put sufficient time upon them. Printed pongees and figured foulards in small designs are now being used, and are necessarily intended for wear with one-tone gowns.

The material is stretched smoothly over the crown, the brim and the under side of the brim. When this is finished there is a half-inch black velvet binding put on by hand round the brim's edge. This sounds peculiar, but is a revival of the Louis styles. Now the trimming is very simple, but seems to consist of only a few sorts. We have the metallic band of galeon, placed rather low round the crown and held on by a stiff rosette fashioned of the same galeon and having a few tiny flowers at its center, or else we have a band of cherry-colored ribbon velvet, with a close bunch of hand-made cherries done in brilliant red silk stuffed with cotton.

And still another and more exquisite decoration on a green-and-white foulard hat is a scant wreath of flowers made entirely by hand. The stems, which surround the hat, are made of soft green taffeta, not twisted but folded into the narrowest of French folds. The leaves and tiny rosebuds, which straggle along at intervals and are not many in number, are made of green and pink taffeta. The hat may be one of the most exquisite of hand-made creations if time and care be put upon it.

Why not the hat as fancy work? Many women have developed into most successful home milliners by just such efforts as the hand-made, hand-trimmed hat.

Where Truth Doesn't Count.

The same fate that gave her a line of New England country folk for ancestors quite as unkindly cast her lot in the millinery department of a dry goods store.

"You don't look half bad in that peach-basket shape, now," she said to the large flabby-faced woman who was gazing with approbation at her reflection in the glass, "and the green doesn't make you look half as sallow as you'd expect." She was fairly warming-up to the subject now. "Of course, if you'd get a wider brim you wouldn't look so fat." The customer arose and departed bristling in every fiber.

A slim anemic girl with red hair took her place. The New England saleswoman approached her with grim determination to be ingratiating. "This is real artistic," she said, as the girl picked up a rose bud creation. "And it's all right with your hair, too, though it doesn't just suit your complexion," then remembering herself with a gasp. "Not but what the French do say there's nothing so dainty as freckles."

Good and Evil of Cold Baths.

They should be taken only when effect is found, by trying, to be beneficial.

A feeling of reaction and exhilaration should follow.

A cold bath should never be taken at night, for exercise afterward is necessary in order to get the greatest good from the experience.

A cold tub, either shower or plunge, should never last more than two minutes.

If a shower is used the water should spray sharply against the body, thus stimulating the circulation.

When taking a plunge have enough water in the tub to cover the body. Stay in but a moment, and keep every muscle moving by kicking, moving the arms and legs, etc.

Instant rubbing with Turkish towels adds to the effect.

If you are chilly afterward or in any way do not feel strong and fit the bath should be avoided.

A milder form of stimulant is a cold sponge, which is merely wiping the body with a sponge or cloth wet with cold water.

This is also an excellent finish to a warm bath.

A Dainty Dish for Invalids.

There is no more delicate and appetizing food for the invalid than a dish of sweetbreads daintily prepared. They should first be put into water that has just reached the boiling point, and allowed to remain for half an hour, with water kept just at the boiling point, no more. Then plunge them into a quart of ice-cold water in which there is either the juice of half a lemon or a tablespoonful of vinegar, and leave for an hour to blanch and become firm.

Make a white sauce, using a tablespoonful of butter and a level tablespoonful flour. When blended in a stew pan, add a half cup of milk. Stir until smooth, and add a can of peas or a pint of fresh peas. Brown sweetbreads in a little butter, season to taste, and serve on peas over small slices of toast.

Oil Business a Vast One.

There are 500,000 men engaged in the production of oil in the United States, on whose labor 2,500,000 people depend, and the daily wages paid are about $1,000,000, or approximately $300,000,000 a year. This includes the production, refining and shipping of petroleum, as also the manufacturing of petroleum products.
